The Traditional Attire

The traditional attire of a Blue Coral Naga Bride is a stunning combination of vibrant colors, intricate designs, and exquisite details. Apart from the iconic mezhur shawl, the bride wears a traditional dress called "tsumang," which is meticulously handmade using silk or cotton fabric.

The tsumang dress typically features vibrant geometric patterns and embroidered motifs, showcasing the skilled craftsmanship of the Naga artisans. The bride's ensemble is completed with handcrafted jewelry, such as necklaces, earrings, and bracelets, adorned with semi-precious stones and coral beads.

Wedding Customs and Rituals

The Blue Coral Naga Brides participate in various customs and rituals that add a mystical touch to their weddings. One such ritual is the "Ani Then," a traditional ceremony where the bride's family offers prayers to the gods and seeks their blessings for a happy married life.

Another significant custom is the "pong midang," which involves the exchange of gifts between the families of the bride and groom. These gifts include traditional items like bamboo baskets, hand-woven blankets, and locally produced rice wine, which hold great cultural significance.

The Breathtaking Celebrations

Blue Coral Naga weddings are known for their grand celebrations and vibrant festivities. The entire community comes together to celebrate the union of two souls, showcasing their rich cultural heritage through dance, music, and traditional performances.

The wedding feast, known as "dawàn," is an elaborate affair where an array of delicious Naga cuisines, such as smoked pork, bamboo shoots, and fermented soybean dishes, are served. The guests are treated to a gastronomic delight that reflects the flavors and aromas of the region.

The Timeless Beauty

The beauty of the Blue Coral Naga Brides lies not only in their physical appearance but also in their cultural traditions that have withstood the test of time. These brides are the epitome of grace, elegance, and resilience, representing the true essence of Naga heritage.

Through their vibrant attire and elaborate wedding customs, the Blue Coral Naga Brides continue to captivate the hearts of people worldwide, leaving an everlasting impression in the memory of anyone fortunate enough to witness their ethereal beauty.

The Blue Coral Naga Brides are truly the embodiment of elegance and grace. With their captivating beauty, vibrant attire, and rich cultural traditions, they are a testament to the rich heritage of the Naga people. Their weddings are not just events; they are celebrations that showcase the unity, love, and artistry of the Naga community.

Witnessing a Blue Coral Naga Bride on her wedding day is like witnessing a living artwork that transports you into a world where tradition, beauty, and cultural pride intertwine to create a mesmerizing experience.

When I see her, I have to have her.

The one they call Shelby.

But the humans have not given her to us. She remains behind the walls of the facility they have reclaimed. She remains with a male that does not DESERVE her.

This beautiful, enchanting creature with long black braids and bright eyes needs a real male, a master, a true protector. She needs me.

I will do whatever it takes to claim her.

I'll kill.

I'll lie.

I'll steal.

No human, naga, or otherwise will keep us apart. Tonight, Shelby will be in my arms.

To hell with the rest.

Blue Coral is the third book in a series of Bride Hunting Aliens. With the charm of a snake, and the wiles of a devil, these males will do anything, and I mean anything, for their females.
