The play , KING GUINGUIN: THE SLAVE TRADE FACILITATOR is about the roles the Africans themselves played in the obnoxious and inhumane slave trade. It is a known fact that it was the African intermediaries that raided native settlements to source for slaves for the whites.

King Guinguin typified the kings, chiefs and the slave merchants who always identified the potential areas of harvesting slaves. Guinguin was warned against the destructive, inhuman and obnoxious trade but failed to heed his people's warnings.
